EARLY C. EWING

After more than forty years of cotton breeding work aimed at developing the best and most profitable cottons and of variety testing, I think we have in Deltapine 15 and D.&P.L.-Fox the two unexcelled varieties for a wide range of conditions. In the light of that experience a good indication of the merit in these two varieties is the fact that in my personal farming operations we are using a combination of the two varieties, planting Fox in our wages crop ($2/3$ of our acreage) and the tenants' cotton with 15. Recently my partner, Battle Ewing, who manages the place, said he had his wages cotton, all Fox and machine picked, in the compress by Thanksgiving, but most of his neighbors were still picking then, late in January. We get the same price for both varieties of the same grade.
